

Teaching and Leadership Innovation Fund

Pupil outcomes cannot improve without committing to the professional development of the teacher workforce. The Teaching and Leadership Innovation Fund (TLIF) will provide up to £75 million, over 3 years, for the development of teachers and leaders.

Recently named projects that will help provide tailored training opportunities for teachers on both managing challenging pupil behaviour and developing leadership, so they can make the most of their talent in the classroom. Many of them will have a focus in the 12 Opportunity Areas announced by the Secretary of State last year, helping to tackle issues around social mobility.

This investment in the profession is part of the government's drive to build an education system that creates clear and rewarding career pathways for the people entering and progressing in teaching.

You can find out more about TLIF on GOV.UK, including information for those thinking of enrolling in one of the programmes.